

State Bank Helps To Foil Home Repair Scam

A $1,200 swindle attempt was stopped by an alert vice-president at the State Bank of Antioch who was suspicious of a check presented by a man on the account of the intended victim, an 82-year old Ingleside woman.

The man, who called himself Sam Miller and was described to be about 40 years old, came to the woman's house on the afternoon of Aug. 7 with two helpers and told her the gutters needed cleaning and her chimney had to be "siliconed."

The two helpers then climbed on the roof and began blowing out leaves with a leaf blower while Miller inspected the rear gutters and told her they had to be replaced because of leaks. Miller allegedly told her he would silicone the gutters as well as the chimney. He reportedly estimated the cost at $1,353, saying that silicone costs $41 per pound and she would need 33 pounds. He reportedly said he would settle for $1,200 if she would pay cash.

She told him she did not keep cash in the house, but would write a check. After accepting the check, he allegedly told her that he was leaving to pick up a 25-year guarantee form. At this point, the lady became suspicious and tried to get the license number off his blue van. The license plate was covered with a green cloth.

While looking through the phone book for the number of her bank, the lady received a phone call from State Bank Vice-President, Betty Sutcliffe. Sutcliffe told her that a man was trying to cash a $1,200 check on her account and the amount seemed excessive for the service described in the memo line of the check. The lady told Sutcliffe that she was sure she was the victim of a fraud and asked that the check not be cashed. Miller left the bank.

Lake County Sheriff's Deputies, upon examining the gutters, found about an inch of dirt covered with leaves.

Hansen Builds Plane, Wins Championship

by CHARLES JOHNSTON

It was a labor of love that cost 35-year-old Fred Hansen six and a half years and $18,000. But it paid off when the custom-designed bi-plane he built won him the International Grand Championship at the Oshkosh International Air Show last week.

Hansen started work on the open cockpit, two-passenger bi-plane in January of 1980, based on a design he had seen in Sport

Aviation magazine. Working in his basement and garage whenever he had a little free time, he finally finished in time for the Fourth of July weekend this year.

After completion, he and four friends assembled it in his yard for official inspection, which was required before he could move it. After passing the inspection, he and his friends de-assembled and took it to Kenosha Airport for final re-assembly. That is where it remains except when Hansen is flying—lately, almost every day.

The annual Oshkosh International Air Show is the largest in the world, commanding an annual attendance of over a million people from 64 countries. During the week-long extravaganza, Oshkosh Airport handles five times the air traffic that O'Hare International in Chicago, normally the world's busiest, handles in the same amount of time.

With 457 home-built planes competing in two classes, custom-built and kit-built (Hansen's was custom-built), Hansen was praying for one of the six honorable mentions.

"Never in my wildest dreams did I expect to win the Grand Champion's medal," he said, "Normally three judges will take a look at each plane and if they are interested, call in others. Eleven judges looked at my plane and made the decision."

When he is not flying, Hansen is part owner, with his brother and father, of Hansen's Custom Cabinets in Lake Villa. Although he traces his fascination with flying back to his boyhood days when he made model airplanes, Hansen says he does not have the desire to be either a full-time pilot or flight instructor.

"I just love to fly," he says.

Though the design he chose called for a 100-horsepower engine, Hansen got a great deal on a brand new 125-horsepower engine built for the war in 1943. It was never used and he got it at half-price.

Emmons School Offers Many New Courses

Emmons School has revised its junior high program this year with the addition of new courses and modified scheduling. The purpose for changing is to offer students a wider variety of courses during their peak learning years.

Pre-algebra will be offered to seventh and eighth graders who have high ability in math. Algebra will be added next year for high level eighth graders.

Sixth graders will participate in a study skills course three periods a week designed to improve skills such as outlining, speed reading, research, notetaking, and critical thinking.

Exploratory courses, which will expose students to a variety of interests and knowledge in an informal setting, will be offered to cross grade groupings of all junior high students. These courses may help students make good decisions about which electives to take in high school. Each teacher has selected a topic for exploratory courses based on personal interests, hobbies, or other courses of study the teacher has pursued. Topics for this year include mythology, batik, high finance, string art design, dramatics, cricket and first aid. Each course will last nine weeks.

Because of the additions to the junior high program, scheduling has been changed to place academic "core" subjects at prime time. Non-core classes will generally be taught in the afternoon.

The band schedule this year consists of two last period sessions and one before school session.

Members of the junior high staff at Emmons are Kathy Uredowski, science; Valerie Hansen, English; Steve Skurski, social studies; and Kathy Lyman, mathematics.

Superintendent Jill R. Ballock coordinates the junior high program. She is also the principal of Emmons School.

The public hearing will be for the purpose of hearing comments regarding the 64 percent increase in the levy for the Antioch Twp. Road Dist.

No Bum Steer Here

The State Bank of Antioch purchased a 1,200-lb. steer at the Lake County Fair auction and donated it to the Antioch Boys' Little League, Girls' Softball League, and Babe Ruth Leagues. Bank president, Randy Miles (center) successfully bid on the steer, which was raised by 4-H member, Kim Richards. Richards is the daughter of Dave (far right) and Susan Richards of Zion. Also attending the purchase were, from left, Charlie, Jane, and Audra Miles. The bank donates a steer each year to the combined leagues and pays the cost of processing the beef for raffle winners.

Illinois, McHenry Seek To Stop Sludge Delivery

by CHARLES JOHNSTON

If the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA), the Illinois Attorney General, and the McHenry County State's Attorney have their way, Hillview Farms in Richmond may be ordered to halt its operations before the week is out.

All three agencies have filed a motion in the 19th Judicial Circuit calling for a temporary restraining order that would, temporarily at least, stop sludge operations at the farm in Richmond.

Hillview Farms owner Arnold May was scheduled to appear before Circuit Court Judge Michael Sullivan at the courthouse in Woodstock at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 13.

The motion to halt May's operations arose when John Raevuori of the IEPA and Pat McNulty of the McHenry County Dept. of Health filed affidavits that nearly 35,000 gallons of waste sludge had been illegally dumped in a depressed area of open field at the farm.

Hillview Farms has been twice denied renewal of its permit to accept and inject sludge. The case is pending final appeal before the Illinois Pollution Control Board at a hearing set for Richmond High School on Aug. 28 and 29. The hearing will continue until 10 p.m. on Aug. 28 to allow for comments from residents who normally work during regularly scheduled hearing hours.

Grand Champion

"Actually, it worked out very well," Hansen said. "I talked to others who had used this design and they said the 100-horsepower motor was a little light for this craft. It is a very docile, fun-flying plane."

Hansen said that the open cockpit aspect of the plane must be experienced to be fully appreciated.

"Before building this, I flew Cessnas. There is just no comparison between the two. With this plane you're up there, alone, and the wind is flying all around you. It is an incredible experience," he said.

As winter sets in, Hansen expects to get a lot of practice in slow flying. There is no way to cover the cockpit, so when the weather gets cold, he will just have to put on his snowmobile suit and cruise gently.

"I got up early one morning to fly and forgot to bring my jacket. It can get pretty cold up there. Normal cruise speed for the craft is 95 miles per hour, but I can keep it airborne at 45. I will probably do a lot of that through the winter," he laughed.

Hansen didn't get his wife to go up with him until after the air show.

"She was nervous about the open cockpit, but she said she would try it once and see if she liked it. I was careful to bank gently and give her a smooth ride. She loved it. We'll be going up together more often now."

Asked if he had plans for building any more award-winning planes, Hansen laughed, saying, "I consider it a major accomplishment that I built this and kept my marriage together while doing it. I don't think my wife would let me start on another one."

Dist. 34 Registration Set For Aug. 19, 20

Three-Car Accident Jolts 7 Passengers

Two persons were admitted and four treated following a three-car accident on Aug. 6 at Grass Lake and Bluff Lake Rds. southwest of Antioch.

A spokesman at Victory Memorial Hospital in Waukegan said Sherry Irvin, 30, of McHenry and her daughter, Michelle, 10, were listed in good condition. Her son, Michael, eight, was treated and released.

Lois Fucela, 52, and her passenger, Susan Holstrom, 22, both of Antioch, were treated and released at Lake Forest Hospital. Michael Schmidt, 18, of Antioch was a passenger in the car driven by Scott Case, 16, of Antioch. Schmidt was treated at Victory Memorial Hospital.

Case complained of pain and was taken to Victory but was not treated according to a spokesman. Lake County Sheriff's Police said the chain-reaction accident occurred at about 1:30 p.m. when Case's car ran into the Irvin auto which was stopped to make a left turn onto Bluff Lake Rd. The impact shoved the Irvin auto into the Fucela car which also was stopped to make a left turn. Case was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Chorus Sets Rehearsal

The Waukegan Symphony Chorus (WSC), under the direction of Don Horisberger, announces that rehearsals for their 10th anniversary season will begin Tuesday, Aug. 19, at 7 p.m. and continue every Tuesday evening at First Presbyterian Church, 122 N. Utica St., Waukegan.

Program highlights include Mozart's "Mass in C minor," Beethoven's "Choral Fantasia," Faure's "Requiem," John Rutter's, "Gloria."

The chorus will perform a cappella and with the Waukegan Symphony Orchestra.

Originating as a community chorus, the WSC has maintained that status giving non-professional singers the opportunity to perform choral masterworks.

An associate member of The Assn. of Professional Vocal Ensembles, the chorus has also recently been recognized for achievement by the American Choral Directors Assn., and has been selected to participate in the association's Illinois State Convention in October.

All interested singers are encouraged to attend the first rehearsal or call (312) 244-1660 for information.

Chamber Plans Fallfest

The Twin Lakes Area Chamber of Commerce is making preparations for its upcoming Fallfest '86.

The dates for this year's festivities are Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept.

Participates
Airman First Class Michael K. Smith, whose former guardian is James B. and Janice Lewandowski, Silver Lake, has participated in Global Shield 86, an exercise involving U.S. Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps units, and elements of the Canadian Forces. Smith is a fuels specialist with the 22nd Supply Squadron at March Air Force Base, Calif.

Home Delivery
Home delivery of this newspaper and associated Lakeland Newspapers is easy to arrange. Simply dial (312) 223-8161, connect with the circulation department and ask for home delivery.

26, 27, and 28.

The Chamber is looking for groups and businesses to sponsor floats in the parade that weekend. It is hoped that this year's parade can be one of the largest.

It also encourages organizations to plan an event for that time. The activities should be of interest to both residents and out-of-towners.

Any group or organization planning to participate in some manner should contact the Chamber of Commerce office, as they will be coordinating activities for the Fallfest weekend, by phoning (414) 877-2220.

If any group had a float in the Kenosha County or other parade, this would afford another opportunity to use it. Fill out the form and return to the Chamber office.

Build a float and join in the parade at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 27. Lineup is at 10 a.m. at Lakewood Grade School. Prizes will be awarded. Pre-register before Sept. 12 deadline.

Have New Location

The Waukegan Community Players announce the start of their 31st Season with a new location for the production of their shows.

tage, Bowen Park, Waukegan.

Sister Honore, superintendent of the fine arts department at the Kenosha County Fair, admires grand champion art work, sculpture of an Indian squaw done by Mark Whiteside.

Stage Two Closes 'Lies'

Stage Two, a non-equity professional theater company, which performs at the College of Lake County, completes its successful 1986 season with the Chicago area/regional premiere of Hugh Whitmore's play, "Pack of Lies."

The last three performances for this play are Friday, Saturday, Aug. 15, 16 at 8 p.m., and Sunday, Aug. 17, at 3 p.m.

All performances are in Theatre Building No. 5 at CLC, 19361 W. Washington St., Grayslake.

This play examines the role of the ordinary citizen in society and also challenges the themes of loyalty and deception.

The 3 p.m. Sunday matinee will feature a special ticket program called "Pay What You Can." It will offer Stage Two discount tickets for Lake County residents on somewhat slower theater nights, benefitting both the community and the performing arts company.

Village Investigates

The Village of Grayslake is investigating a complaint from a resident about a building on Center St.

According to Grayslake Building Inspector Walter Stang, the village has sent a letter to the building's owner stating a formal complaint has been followed by a resident concerning possible overcrowding.

Stang said the owner of the building has five working days to respond to the letter, requesting the number of people who live there.

"It's a private residence. I can't go barging in there," Stang said.

Once the return letter is received, Stang said the village will forward it to its attorney for any possible ordinance violation.

I thought I was the only child!

Adjusting to changes in a family isn't easy, but a newborn has the advantage of all kinds of attention and being "star of the show" for a while. To the new big brother or sister, though, the adjustment period can be confusing and a little scary. Whether the sibling waiting at home is a toddler or a ten-year-old, there can be feelings of loss, jealousy and anxiety.

The Very Important Sibling (V.I.S.) Class at Northern Illinois Medical Center addresses the problems parents may face when they bring home the new little attention-getter to his or her brothers and sisters. Children from three to ten years enjoy the free Sunday afternoon session as they learn how to bathe and feed a newborn, tour the maternity department and nursery, and verbalize some of their thoughts on the impending arrival. They learn how important they are in the family structure and the unique role they have as a big brother or sister.

The V.I.S. Class is just one of many benefits in NIMC's childbirth program. We want your pregnancy and delivery to be as special as possible for every member of your family. Call today to join Rock-A-Bye Club, our exclusive free prenatal program, and to enroll your children in the V.I.S. Class closest to the birth of your baby. After all, they're the most important siblings your newcomer will ever have. Wouldn't it be nice if they started out as best friends, too? For information, call 815/344-5000, and ask for the Rock-A-Bye Coordinator.

Scouts Of Troop 92 Have Fun At Summer Camp

Antioch's Boy Scouts of America Troop 92 earned 55 merit badges and a number of other awards at a fun filled annual two-week summer camp and Camp Owassippe, Mich. The camp, one of America's largest Scout reservations, is located 15 miles north of Muskegon near Whitehall. Camp Owassippe provides a wealth of opportunities for Scouts to acquire knowledge and skills of the outdoors, obtain team and leadership experience, and have lots of fun.

Troop 92's 19 Scouts collectively earned 55 merit badges in such subjects as lifesaving, wilderness survival, Indian lore, mammals, camping, hiking, basketry, environmental science, canoeing, orienteering, rowing, and swimming. Scout Steve Newcomb earned seven merit badges. Matt Aschbacher, Gene Brown, Jay Bruski, Steve Goetzelman, Dave Stachel, John Thelen, and David Weston each earned four badges. Eric Anderson, Jim Benedict, David Barnov, Brian Paschke, Dan Ravens, Andy Reeves, and Dan Weston, each earned two or three merit badges.

In other individual events, Eric Anderson, Matt Aschbacher, Jay Bruski, Andi Reeves, John Thelen, and David Weston, each completed the Mile Swim twice, and Gene Brown three times. Eric Anderson and Matt Aschbacher each completed the two-and-a-half mile Channel Swim.

Each Friday the camp conducted a waterfront carnival for the 225 campers and Troop 92 actively participated in the event. Anderson and Aschbacher won the canoe race during the first week and placed third in this event during the second week. Bruski took a first in diving the first week. Stachel won the "beauty" contest the first week, and Weston placed second during the second week. Troop 92 won the scavenger hunt the first week.

In group events, the troop completed an all day 22-mile canoe troop down the meandering White River. For their efforts in maintaining an excellent campsite, the troop won the Baden Powell Award during the first week under the leadership of Senior Patrol Leader David Weston, and again the second week under the leadership of Senior Patrol Leader Eric Anderson.

Without the support and supervision of the Troop 92 adult leaders the Scouts would not have been able to attend camp. First week leaders were Scoutmaster Bernie Dost, Assistant Scoutmasters Jay Bruski and Bill Goetzelman, and Committee Member Jim Newcomb. Second week supervision was provided by Assistant Scoutmasters Dick

Weston, Tom Aschbacher and Bob Brown. Other adult members of Troop 92 assisted by driving the 525-mile round trip.

The Scouts were able to earn their way to summer camp by selling meat raffle tickets during the spring months. Troop 92 provides other camping experiences for the boys with funds obtained by a continuous newspaper and aluminum can drive. Troop 92 thanks its sponsor, Antioch's Loyal Order of the Moose Lodge 525 for continued support.

Boy Scout Camp

The boys of Antioch Troop 92 of the Boy Scouts of America had a grand time at their two-week summer camp in Michigan.

Mental Health Assn. Hears From Dr. Donald Skidmore

The Antioch Mental Health Assn. held its most recent meeting at the home of Louise Vos.

The group had Dr. Donald Skidmore, superintendent of Antioch Elementary Schools, as its guest. Dr. Skidmore spoke on special education needs. The association voted to help with these needs.

The group also voted to donate more learning games and material to the Antioch Library. The many games that were donated several years ago were appreciated both by the children and the parents of children with special needs.

Dorothy Teister announced that the 1987 Cotillion will be held at Nippersink Resort near Twin Lakes on May 9 next year. An attractive golf and overnight package will be available for the weekend. The musical group, Arcade, will again provide dance music.

The Antioch Mental Health Assn. is able to fund all these special projects and donate to Grove School, Lambs Farm, and Riverside Foundation through income from The Thrift Shop at 921 Main St. and the annual Cotillion.

Letter To The Editor:

Fresh Air

Editor,

Last year, in complete ignorance of the ongoing scenario with Hillview Farms, we purchased a home in the country (on Clark Rd. adjacent to a portion of the farms), motivated by the anticipation of enjoying fresh, clear country air. At that time, we thought the former owners to be rather reclusive, since each time we viewed the house, they were inside with the windows closed tightly and the air conditioner in full operation. We did not, at that time, notice the all too familiar stench of Hillview's waste management operation.

Why is it that those, such as Jim Thomson, who live in far away places can be so tolerant of pollution (perhaps he is also a smoker)? In this age of ecology movements, catalytic converters, and no-smoking campaigns, what about my right to breathe clean, fresh air? I believe Mr. May's rights end where my nose begins.

It is unfortunate that someone's criminal action at the Hillview Farms has turned sympathy to the side of the farm. We watched the fire at 3 a.m. that morning, certain in our minds that the barn had been struck by lightning.

Thomson quoted the words of journalism professor, O.C. Leiter, "Never jump to conclusions before you write your story. Get all the facts before you make up your mind. And don't get emotionally involved. You could be guilty of a mental lynching."

I wonder if Jim Thomson practices what he preaches. Has he really talked to "those leaders of the community who ignore experts and enjoy the publicity," or does he feel that the other side is not worthy of representation?

John and Betty Schad
Richmond

Editor's note: Jim Thomson, retired editor of Prairie Farmer magazine, had an article published in this newspaper two weeks ago that presented a positive viewpoint of the sludge operations at Hillview Farms.

Hits Tree Following Argument

Debra J. Smith, 34, of Antioch, told Lake County

Sheriff's Deputies that she intentionally drove her car off the road and hit a tree in an incident that occurred about 10 a.m. on Aug. 7.

She said she had just left her boyfriend's home after a quarrel when her car ran off

Drexel Blvd. south of Grass Lake Rd. and struck the tree.

She was listed in satisfactory condition at St. Therese Medical Center in Waukegan.

Women Of The Moose Enroll Four Members

The Women of the Moose held a Sunday afternoon enrollment of four new members on Aug. 3. Membership chairman, Gail Klinesmith, hosted the program and presented two checks from her committee to be sent to Mooseheart for special projects.

Senior Regent Theresa Grefkowicz asked that the charter be draped in black for 30 days in memory of deceased co-worker Toni Dickson. Chaplain Margie Turner asked all co-workers to join her in prayer for the deceased co-worker.

The new child care committee chairman, Cathy Rock, was installed by regent Jerri Polson with Collegian Dorothy Tralewski acting as installing guide. This completes the installation of the 31 members on the ritual staff for the chapter year 1986-87.

Lunch was prepared and served by the membership committee after the meeting for the 37 members in attendance and their escorts.

Up-coming events include a business meeting on Thursday, Aug. 21, at 8 p.m. and ritual practice on Monday, Aug. 25, at 7:30 p.m.

"Up The Stairs"

Sept. 12 Deadline For CWA Union Workers

Illinois Bell and the Communications Workers of America (CWA) have until Sept. 12 to ratify a new contract with Illinois Bell.

On Aug. 10, workers reached a tentative agreement on a new three-year contract which includes a modified profit-sharing plan called "Success Sharing" and an immediate 2.5 percent wage increase, including a $400 ratification bonus.

The agreement calls for minimum wage increases of 2 percent in the second and third years of the contract. A cost of living adjustment would be applied for increases of up to 5.5 percent that may take place in the consumer price index.

The agreement averts a strike that would have affected 2,300 Illinois Bell employees. Approximately 1,900 are directory assistance operators and clerical workers. The CWA also represents some 400 union eligible employees from all departments in the company's Southwest district which includes East St. Louis, Belleville and Granite City.

"This agreement will bring Illinois Bell and its employees through the next three years with solid wages and benefits as well as the strength to compete in today's marketplace," said Paul Downing, Illinois Bell vice president-Human Resources.

"I think both management and the union leadership can be proud of this accomplishment."

"This agreement recognizes the unique nature of the jobs many CWA-represented employees perform and, at the same time, is similar to the contract we already have with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW)."

The Success Sharing incentive plan parallels one negotiated in June with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the first of its kind in the telecommunications industry. It would increase the annual wages of union-eligible employees by as much as 2 percent depending on the company's service and financial performance.

Downing said the agreement also includes an expanded health care program called Health Choice to provide employees more flexibility in managing their health care needs.

Two Party Issue Eyed By Hess

Preservation of two-party government will be an overriding issue in the November elections, predicted County Clerk Linda Hess.

A Democrat, Hess said she intends to focus on the importance of the two-party check-and-balance as her campaign shifts into high gear.

The presence of a Democrat in the county clerk's office will insure that election machinery is safeguarded, she asserted.

"During the next two and a half months, I'll also be

Foreman: No Landfill Without Public Hearing

by CHARLES JOHNSTON

Saying that he is a fighter, not a settler, State's Atty. Fred Foreman maintained that he is willing to go the distance on the Heartland lawsuit if that is what the county board wants him to do.

Foreman added that he has always been opposed to another landfill in that area and remains opposed to such an idea.

"There was a proposal at one time during discussions that would have allowed such a landfill," he said,

"but I advised the board that they could not make that part of a settlement agreement. In order for another landfill to go in, there must be public hearings before the pollution control board.

"Personally, I am not an advocate of the resource recovery area (landfill). I agree with many of the things Mike Graham has said about them."

Foreman added that even if the final proposal contained reference to a landfill, the subject would have to go through public hearings and follow the process required by law before it could receive final approval.

"There will be no landfill in that area without everyone affected being able to speak their piece and fight it," he said.

As to allegations that he had figuratively held a gun to the head of Grayslake officials by demanding that they either agree to this settlement or go it on their own, Foreman suggested that these charges were either politically motivated or that officials had misinterpreted what he was doing.

"First of all, I do not represent the county on this; they have hired attorneys to represent them. Any settlement proposals have come from their office, not mine. My job is to provide oversight and give advice to the county.

"The judge is getting ready to begin the trial and we have to know very soon whether the county wants to fight or to settle because we have to tell the judge. I don't care what the county decides to do, but I have to know.

"As for Grayslake, no one from my office ever threatened them. We had to advise them, of course, that if they and the county could not agree and the county decided to settle, then Grayslake would have to pursue the legal battle on their own," Foreman said.

Most sources agreed that Foreman had voiced opposition to the landfill and said that it was plausible that he had intended to wait until the hearing process to fight it.

The sources who oppose this agreement, though, maintain that from their perspective, Foreman appeared to be doing much more than simply explaining options: he appeared to them to vigorously support the settlement option.

Foreman said, though, that for five years his office has stood by all the defendants in the case and that, if the county board decides to go ahead and fight, his office will continue.

He added that he has never threatened anyone for leaking details of the proposed agreement, noting that quotes attributed to him in the News-Sun were wrong.

"I was conveying a request and concerns that had been brought to my office by officials of the county board. It was my job to investigate. Though the confidentiality of the negotiations should not have been violated, I don't believe the leaks were criminal," Foreman said.

All parties agree that a reasonable settlement could save the county upwards of $1 million in legal fees. There is substantial disagreement over what is a reasonable settlement, though.

What is clear now is that whether the Heartland suit is settled or not, there will be no second landfill near the ARF site without full and open public hearings.

STAATS Schedules Vision Seminar

Vision problems can affect children's school performance and impair their ability to learn.

To help parents and other adults recognize signs which may indicate a child is experiencing vision problems, a free lecture and screening will be offered Tuesday, Aug. 19, at Saint Therese Area Trauma Satellite, 37809 North Rte. 59, Lake Villa.

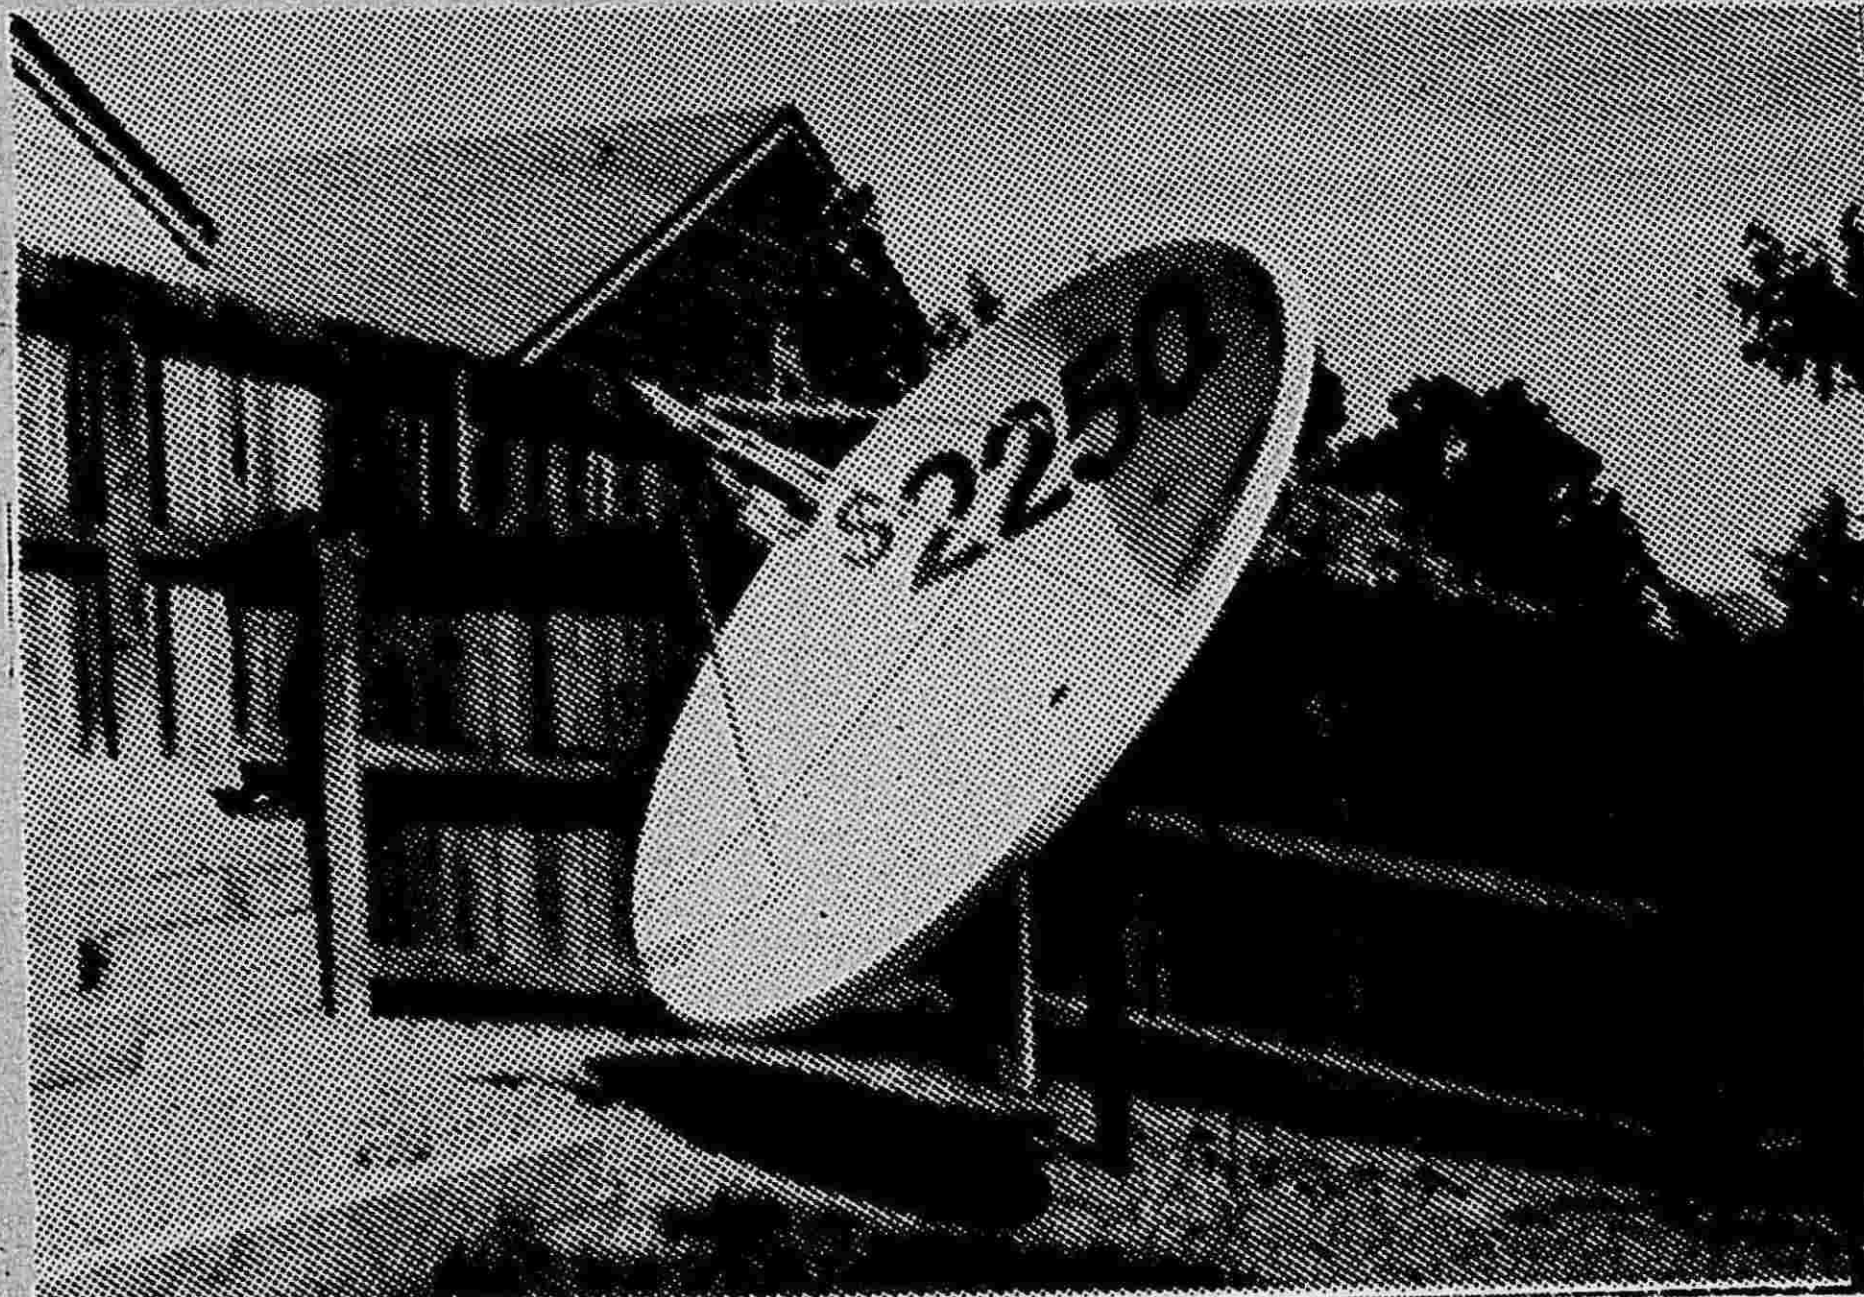

According to Dr. Barry Seiller, ophthalmologist on staff at Saint Therese Medical Center and program participant, a brief discussion of the pathology and symptoms of children's vision problems is scheduled for 2 p.m., followed by vision screening for children ages 3 to 18 years old from 2:30 to 4 p.m. The program will be repeated at 7 p.m. with screening set for 7:30 to 9 p.m.

To register for this free program offered as a community health education service, call Saint Therese Medical Center, 360-2702, M-F 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. A parent or guardian must accompany children for the screening program.

Other participants in this special vision information and screening program include Doctors Thomas Bobka and James Crawford of The Eye Care Center of Lake County, offices located at 2424 Washington, Waukegan, and 248 East Grand, Fox Lake.

BUYING A HOME SATELLITE DISH IS COSTLIER THAN YOU THINK.

Before you spend your hard earned money on a satellite receive dish you should learn the facts.

This year popular premium services like HBO and Cinemax will begin scrambling their signals with highly sophisticated electronic encryption devices.

And this new technique won't be limited to just premium services. Many basic cable channels like ESPN, MTV and CNN have announced their intentions to scramble signals.

What does this mean for satellite dish owners?

In addition to paying several thousand dollars for the purchase and installation of a receive dish, it will be necessary to spend hundreds of dollars on descrambling equipment plus pay monthly service fees for each channel received.

Make your decision based on the facts.

This message is brought to you as a public service by U.S. Cable.

Y Seeks Day Care Providers

The YWCA of Lake County is looking for day care home providers for its Day Care Information and Referral Line which assists parents in finding quality day care in homes, churches, and centers.

The Y has already established a data base of day care providers and are seeking to expand listings. The listing is free of charge to the provider. They will assist providers with referrals to their homes and centers. Additionally, it will offer workshops each month to day care home providers to assist them in their businesses.

These workshops will be on business issues dealing with taxes and record keeping as well as workshops on child development and nutrition.

The first step in the YWCA is currently taking is to develop a data bank of current day care providers. Persons who are currently doing home day care or day care centers who would like more information should call the YWCA of Lake County at (312) 662-8670.

Players Limp On Drugs

America's professional athletes, pampered, promoted, preened and petty, present the greatest force for good—or bad—in implementation of the new drive against drugs in society.

Like it or not, those who play for pay have greater influence on the daily lives of both youth and adults than anyone else in society today with the possible exception of parents who take the time and energy to guide their offspring to become good and useful citizens.

That's why it was so disquieting to note that Chicago Bear football players were dragged kicking and screaming into a drug-testing program. Bear management had to threaten players with suspension to put the test into operation. At one point, things were so tense that an exhibition game with the Pittsburgh Steelers was in doubt for fear there wouldn't be enough players to take the field against the Steelers.

General manager Jerry Vainisi stressed that Bear management was ready to take a strong stand for testing and risk not playing. Hurrah! Bear players, the same ones revered by fans after their Super Bowl exploits and known to many Lakeland residents personally, dragged their feet on the pretext that they needed "more information" and "more education." Horse feathers!

Professional football players, faced with an opportunity to proclaim to the world that they support the battle against drugs, are miffing their chance badly. "Well take the test, but give us a little more education," exclaims Mike Singletary, Bear players representative. Sorry, Mike. You may be the greatest linebacker in pro football today, but in the battle against drugs you've got the impact of a wet noodle.

One of the saddest parts of the whimpy attitude of pro gridders toward drug control that their soft side is showing at a time when young players are getting ready to go back to school and begin their own football season. How can parents and school officials take a headline against drugs when their role models on the Bears are whining and trying to resist testing? They can't, to put it bluntly, and it gets very frustrating to try.

When the pros go squeaky clean on drugs and pushers start facing the gas chamber then society will see progress in the battle against drugs. But not until then!

Lottery Watching

Lottery watching, as far as we're concerned, is more fun than lottery playing. It's fascinating to consider that in the 12 years of its existence, the Illinois Lottery has grossed more than $4 billion and grown to be the fourth-largest revenue producer in state government. Plunking down some hard-earned green every day or several times a week for a lottery ticket, however, strikes us as being about as exciting as going to a professional volleyball game.

It's difficult to imagine that each of our neighbors in Lake County forked over $105.86 last year for lottery fun, but that's the per capita figure for $46,576,207 in lottery tickets purchased in Lake County in 1985. That kind of lottery interest put Lake County in a solid secondplace behind Chicago for the metropolitan area, but the figure is misleading because of all the Wisconsin residents who purchase lottery tickets hereabouts. That explains all the yellow license plates around here.

Even being aware that lottery profits get steered into the Illinois Common School Fund doesn't arouse our interest in taking a chance on becoming a millionaire. Main St. is enjoyable the way it is—without trying to turn it into Easy St. with a lottery chance.

A Gratifying Business

Sometimes, the newspaper business can be very gratifying.

When we in the press do our job right, people can make informed decisions as to what is in their best interests. In the last three weeks, Lakeland Newspapers has had an effect on the nature of public discussion in this county.

Three weeks ago, Warren Twp. High School had lost $375,000 in emergency relocation aid through a veto by the governor. Officials were dismayed, but saw little chance of getting the money restored. Then, in an exclusive interview with Lakeland Newspapers, Governor Thompson said that he would lend the good services of his office to help Warren get the funding from another source.

That interview led Warren officials to contact the governor's office and now they are working with hopes of getting the money after all.

Last week, we revealed details of a proposed settlement agreement between the county and developers of the Heartland property in central Lake County. Opponents of the agreement said that it was tantamount to giving the store away. They blamed Lake County Board Chairman Jim LaBelle and State's Atty. Fred Foreman for pushing the agreement.

This week, Foreman has vigorously asserted that he is either the victim of a misunderstanding or that the charges against him were politically motivated. He has clearly and publicly voiced his opposition to another landfill going in near the ARF site.

While his critics concede that he may have intended to fight the landfill during the hearing process, they also say that Foreman has toned down his support for the settlement.

Letters Invited

Letters to the editor are welcome. They should be on topics of general interest, approximately 250 words or less. All letters must be signed, and contain home address and telephone number. The editor reserves the right to condense all letters.

Buckle Up

Even while many drivers continue to grouse about the Illinois Seat Belt Law, evidence continues to mount that the year-old law dramatically has lowered highway fatalities.

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) released provisional figures showing that there were 68 occupant fatalities in July, 1986, compared to 88 in July, 1985. The 1981-85 five-year average for July is 89. Encouraging is the apparent gain in momentum that is taking place in public acceptance and compliance. The good-looking results now should only get better. There should be no argument about "buckling up" in face of the facts.

Age, LaRouchskis Press Leadership Role On Mickey

by BILL SCHROEDER

Two things more than anything else propelled Sheriff Robert "Mickey" Babcox to a position of unquestioned dominance in Lake County Republican politics—a vacuum in GOP leadership and the abberation of the LaRouche candidates.

Babcox will be 59 this coming February. He has been a political household name in Lake County since seeking his first public office at age 21. The mantle of leadership has come to him by default. The entire complexion of the 1986 election, once looked upon as a struggle going down to the wire, has been turned into a Republican landslide because of the disarray caused in Democratic ranks by LaRouchskis who won two statewide nominations. GOP leaders of whatever degree have inherited new power and strength. The sheriff, who has devoted a lifetime to politics, is not one to shirk when power comes his way.

Sheriff Babcox shied away from our direct reference to how the advent of the LaRouche candidates opened new vistas for him, preferring to stress his own determination to go all out in what he implied would be his last race—his last hurrah.

"I'll be 64 after my next term. That's getting pretty old," Mickey chuckled easily. "The one thing I'm concerned about is getting the jail project taken care of. That's what I want to do," Babcox remarked, referring to the major overhaul and expansion of jail facilities in Waukegan.

Babcox is the picture of a political elder statesman, his thinning white hair complimenting a relaxed and confident manner. Mickey has been around a long time. Pretty much because he is the only one left from an era when the GOP WAS the only party in Lake County, the young turks and unsure power brokers turn to him for counsel. Is he a reluctant leader? Obviously no. It probably is an overstatement, though, to view him as a boss in the context of big city, machine politics. Your writer pleads guilty to that charge.

One of the reasons that the Big Boss tag doesn't hold true is that Sheriff Babcox is taking seriously the bid being mounted by his Democratic opponent, even when the book says the Democrat doesn't have a prayer. And Babcox has indicated he will be on the front lines campaigning for Babcox, not sitting in an ivory tower pulling strings.

An elder statesman? Yes. A political power? Yes. A machine maker? That remains to be seen. What happens in November and the months following will answer that question.

MORE HONORS—One of these years, Sam Raysby, Lakeland's self-styled starving poet, will be on hand to accept in person one of the awards he receives for his poetry.

Saturday, Aug. 30, the World of Poetry will be granting Sam its Silver Poet award and it's doubtful whether the Round Lake Beach resident will be able to make it to Orlando, Fla., to accept the award from Vincent Price, who will be officiating.

Sam Raysby

Last year Sam, who has been making a living as a construction laborer, won the W.O.P. Golden Poet award, but he didn't make it to Reno, Nev., where Steve Allen made the presentations, because he was out of work and couldn't afford the trip.

Sam's fortunes may be turning. Two commercial recording studios are bidding for his song, "A Boy In Rugged Jeans." The struggling writer has survived personal misfortune, including a divorce, in the belief that adversity is a spur to his creativity. The talented young man writes constantly, taking time out only to be with his daughter and follow his hobby, photography. We wouldn't be surprised one of these days to find Sam Raysby an overnight sensation—after all his years of hard work.

Buttery Taste Ranks As Culinary Achievement

That buttery taste ranks in the Top Ten of Culinary Achievements in my home.

There's nothing better than buttery steak, which just calls for allowing a little butter to melt on the meat after it's cooked to your specifications.

I'll take maitre d'hotel butter—three tablespoons soft butter blended with one tablespoon lemon juice, one tablespoon finely chopped parsley, one-half teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon black pepper—on my potatoes anytime.

You can clarify butter for fancy dishes. You can glorify butter, mixing it with everything from nuts or capers to horseradish or mustard. You can mix butter with such vegetables as watercress or even fruit, such as the avocado, for some interesting spreads.

You can also stick with plain butter, which even comes lightly salted or sweet. Hey, there's even diet butter.

When cooking on high heat, it's a good idea to mix in a little olive oil so the butter doesn't burn.

Vegetables go with butter about as well as any food.

Fish does too, especially when the butter is the key to the basting sauce.

Do your taste buds a favor—butter them up.

The Mailman Loves Dogs But Not The Dog Bites

by CHARLENE WHITNEY

In April I wrote an article about dogs and the leash law. On May 1 Alvin Sherwood responded to the editor by adding to my consensus the many problems a postman has with dogs running loose. Often they cannot deliver the mail. He also added that the owner of a dog is responsible for medical costs when a dog bites a postman, as well as a fee to the dog pound, etc.

Pet-Wise

I spoke to Alvin to find out more about the postman and his feelings about dogs. He has been a postman for 29 years and has been bitten by dogs at least 12 times. He is not afraid of dogs, but wonders how any owner can let their dog run loose. It not only makes it hard for the postman to deliver the mail, but here are other people who also don't want to face a loose dog. There is the meterman, UPS man, anyone who might be working for you, taking care of your lawn, etc.

He asked that people try to remember to put the dog inside, out of consideration for these people. Also, put the dog in a closed room should firemen or others need to come to aid someone in the household.

Alvin says he has received many compliments on his letter to the editor and no complaints.

Yes, Alvin has a dog. His name is Charlie. Alvin's children got him from the shelter in Fox Lake and gave him to their dad as a Christmas gift.

Charlie is a small mixed breed terrier. He is many shades of black, brown, gray and white. The dog has been in the family for about seven years.

Sherwood's wife, Beronica is much protected by Charlie. He will often hurry to get his bone, then run to meet Beronica with an offering.

Charlie loves to sleep on his back and is always ready for a nap.

Everyday, when it is time for the mailman, you will find Charlie in the house. The mailman knows Charlie, but even so, every mailman is happy to see one less dog running loose while he is trying to deliver the mail.

Sports Future Looks Bright For CLC: Minnerly

The best is yet to come. That's the way Frank Minnerly, after one month on the job as the College of Lake County's athletic director, views the CLC sports future.

"In my 63 years, I have never been more enthused than I am with the opportunities that lie ahead," Minnerly said.

Although Minnerly begins overseeing CLC athletics for his first full school year later this month, he is certainly no stranger to the junior college in Grayslake.

Minnerly's job move simply meant a change in views rather than a move across the country. Minnerly had been supervisor of the grounds and the physical education center, working closely with coaches and staff to make sure everything was in its proper place at the proper time.

"Being athletic director will be a challenge to me," he said.

Minnerly, a World War II veteran, began his career in sports at the YMCA in Detroit.

He served as physical director at Detroit and Greenwich, Conn. before becoming associate executive for Ohio, West Virginia area council of YMCA's from 1956-63.

Since 1963 Minnerly has been executive operating officer of the YMCA of Greater Lake County in Waukegan.

"The YMCA provided a very rewarding experience for me and I would certainly recommend it," he said of the YMCA experiences.

Minnerly becomes head of the athletic department at a time when the Spartans are coming off one of their most successful years.

In golf, the Lancers were second in the Skyway Conference with Rob Steo an individual qualifier at the national tournament.

CLC's women's tennis team was second in the Skyway with a 6-1 overall record while cross country

Minnerly said that the CLC administration, in a present state of flux because of its search for a new president, supports athletics as an "integral part of the junior college experience". He declined to discuss specific budget figures, through coaching here, making them 'blue chippers'. We have had 20 All-Americans in the past, with Washington being the latest and that is a very fine recruiting tool," Minnerly said.

One sport some small colleges and junior colleges have turned to as a recruiting tool to boost revenues and enrollment is football.

Minnerly, however, said the likelihood of Spartans hitting the gridiron is not good for the immediate future.

"I would assume the start-up costs would be prohibitive," the new athletic director said, pointing to the high cost of insurance.

Minnerly said he is happy with the school's status in the Skyway Conference. With good reason - CLC has won 10 of the last 11 all-sports championships.

"You can't get much better than that," Minnerly said. This fall's sports season at CLC gets underway Aug. 29 with a golf match at Highland. The coaching staff for the fall will be Ralph Cianchetti for golf; Dave Beck for soccer; Laura Fillipp for volleyball and Joel Peebles for cross country.

Minnerly hopes to name a new women's softball coach soon but still is in need of a wrestling coach for this fall.

When CLC students, commuters from all parts of the county, walk to and from classes this fall term, they may notice something new.

"We will be video-taping some of our games this year and I'd like to put together clips to present in the lobby to interest the students," Minnerly said.

And if they do come to CLC home matches, they will be watching teams starting the future of success.

Frank Minnerly

was fourth in the league and Mike Campbell and April Van Sickle were national qualifiers. The volleyball squad won the Skyway Conference and its sectional tournament.

Coach Bruce Smith's men's basketball team was Skyway champs and Greg Washington was elected to the third-team All-American and Mike Kloberdanz was the seventh leading rebounder in juco competition. Men's wrestling had three national qualifiers: Tad Derosse, Rick Brubaker and Steve Gust.

Jennifer Munda was named all-Skyway Conference for women's basketball.

The men's baseball team was third in the Skyway while the women's softball and men's tennis squads won league titles.

The men's tennis team went on to qualify for the national junior college tournament.

"We have as fine and dedicated group of coaches as you will find anywhere," Minnerly said.

saying the administration provides athletics with enough funds.

In terms of changes, Minnerly said he would like to see the addition of racquetball courts and an additional gymnasium for aerobics and martial arts. A trainer made available to all sports may be in CLC's future, he said.

Minnerly also sees CLC as becoming a true fitness center for Lake County.

"I see the opportunity for CLC to move ahead in the development of a fitness center. I'd like to see us move into the scientific approach with a joint program with industry," he said.

Recruiting is the name of the game in successful collegiate programs, but sometimes junior colleges are at a disadvantage. If they wish to recruit the 'blue chipper', they lose out to big four-year schools with scholarships.

"If we could get the 'blue chipper', it would be great. But I'm just as happy with the second, third and fourth players on a team and

Bulldogs Getting Primed

The Waukegan Bulldogs will play their first football game against Cary Grove on Saturday, Sept. 6 at home.

Assisting coach Fred Loffredo will be Len Siatta and Jim Kelly. The team will begin practice at 8:30 a.m. Monday, Aug. 18.

With seven returning seniors, the team will be seeking more recruits. The big question, said Loffredo, is whether all those who signed up in the spring will turn out for practice.

Warren Soccer Set To Go

Coach Tom Wendorf's Warren Twp. High School soccer team will begin its fall season at Lake Zurich Sept. 2.

The Blue Devils have three away matches before playing in their first home match Sept. 9 against Carmel. Home matches are played at Viking Park in Gurnee. The North Suburban Conference tournament is Oct. 16-22.

Devils Set For Campaign

Warren Twp. High School's football team, like the Cubs, will be hoping the magic of 1984 returns in 1986.

It was just two years ago that the Blue Devils advanced to the second round of the state playoffs.

Coach Reggie Hughes' charges hope to recapture that coveted status starting with practice Aug. 18.

Hughes was 3-6 in his first year at Warren last fall.

Hughes' assistants on the varsity level this year are Rich Mueller, Kim Cummings and Tony Filippo.

Bruce Campbell heads the sophomore staff and is assisted by Dave Townsend.

Mike Pendergast is the head freshman coach and Pat Goduto is his assistant.

The school is yet to fill one more vacancy in its coaching staff.

The varsity Blue Devils open the season in less than a month, Sept. 6 at Niles North. The first home game for Warren is Sept. 12 against Libertyville at 8 p.m.

Other home games at the Gurnee school include Sept. 26 against Lake Forest, Oct. 10 against Antioch and Nov. 1 against Fenton.

Start Practice Aug. 18

The Mundelein Mustangs kick off their football season on Saturday, Sept. 6 at home against Lake Forest. Practice will get underway at 7:30 a.m. Monday, Aug. 18.

A preview night to introduce the players will be Friday, Aug. 29.

Coach Gary Hefner said the sophomore and varsity programs will be combined, utilizing all coaches to work on various skills. Jerry Mateja and Dave Sibley will be freshman and sophomore line coaches; Dennis Sczymkowiak, freshman coach; Chuck Gandolfi, freshman receiver and secondary coach; Fred Pickett, quarterback and outside linebacker; Duke Miller, wide receiver and secondary coach, John Davis; secondary and tight end; Hefner, inside and runningback.

Meets Highlight Cross County Slate

Seven meets highlight the schedule for the Warren Twp. High School boys & girls cross country team.

After hosting a triangular Sept. 3 against Round Lake and Waukegan West, the Blue Devils travel to Crystal Lake for the Crystal Lake Invitational Sept. 6.

Next it is a meet against Grant before the Wauconda Invitational Sept. 13.

The Blue Devils will host their own invitational Sept. 20 at Viking Park in Gurnee.

The Grant-Crystal Lake Invitational, the Antioch Invitational and the Lake County Meet are other challenges on the schedule.

2 New Coaches Join Sequoit Grid Staff

It's beginning to look a lot like gridiron time and Antioch High School with head varsity coach Steve Wapon getting the 1986 football season together.

This year the football staff will have two new faces, John Walker, assistant on the freshman level and Ted Sieckowski, sophomore defensive coordinator.

Returning to the six level program are Ted DeRouse, defensive back and offensive

Because Antioch usually has approximately 190 students come out for football, there will be cuts before the season starts to keep the program participation at around 150 players.

Antioch's six-level grid program includes varsity, junior varsity, sophomore, sophomore B and freshman A and B teams.

The varsity team usually suits up 55, the sophomores, 40, and about 60 freshman make the program.

The 1986 season will start with a meeting on Saturday, Aug. 16, from 8 to 11 a.m. when varsity equipment will be issued.

Then the season officially begins on Monday, Aug. 18, when the four-day Mother's Football Camp begins and runs through Thursday, Aug. 21.

While practice takes place from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. everyday, mothers of the players will serve juice and snacks in the mornings and afternoons and lunch.

Q: I know I have a bad habit of tucking my head at address but I just can't seem to get the feel of a better position. Any suggestions?

A: With your head bent as you describe, I suspect that you may also be standing too near or crowding the ball. As I'm sure you realize, from this position you are not getting a full turn with your leading shoulder. First of all I want you to move back from the ball at address. This alone will bring your head up slightly. Now look up toward a distant tree top and with your head in this position simply look down at the ball by moving only your eyes. Or you might want to imagine wearing glasses and looking at the ball through the very bottom portion of the lens. Either way your head will be at the proper angle to start your backswing.

Oust County Stars

The Lake County Colt League All-Star team fell on tough times in the post-season tournament.

The Lake County stars lost the first two games and were eliminated in the first round.

In the first game, four runs in the eighth inning by Hoffman Estates meant an 8-4 loss for Lake County. Marvin Coleman pitched six strong innings for the stars.

In game two, Rockford edged Lake County 7-6.

Lake County led 5-1 after two innings before Rockford rallied.

Craig Burton helped the Lake County team with a single, a run-batted-in, and a sacrifice. Jim Cooney had a double for a run-batted in. Jason LaCroix had a double and a run-batted in.

The county team was comprised of players who played for Grayslake, North Chicago, Zion, Grant, Lincolnshire, Round Lake and Gagewood during the regular season.

Grayslake, the season champs, were represented by Phil Dempsey, Lacroix, Eric Gunther, Charlie Miller and Cooney.

North Chicago had four players on the county squad: Johnny Johnson, Coleman, Burton and Greg Wade.

Shane Davis and Keith Nelson played for Zion.

Grant's representative was Steve Maiworm while Chris Pease represented Round Lake, and Tom Minard represented Gagewood.

Lori Guenther, who managed Grayslake, was the team's manager while Johnny Johnson of North Chicago and Larry Lutz of Grant were coaches.

Not Too Early To Plan For 1986 Tax Return

Wise American taxpayers shouldn't wait until year's end to start figuring out how to save money on their 1986 tax return.

Experts told The Meyers Report it's a good idea to keep an eye on tax reform, while taking action now to hunt for deductions that may cut your tax bill at filing time next April 15.

For example, if both you and your spouse work, the cost (or a portion) of sending a child to summer camp may qualify for a child-care credit. The Internal Revenue Service will let you deduct the credit, but not if the camp provides any significant educational services or benefits.

Here are other tax-strategies to consider during the dog days of summer:

-VACATION HOMES - If you use your home only for the summer and rent it for the rest of the year it can provide tax-free income. When you rent your vacation home to others for 14 days or less, you don't have to report the rent—it's completely tax-free.

However, if you use the place for more than 14 days in the year, your deductions for depreciation and utilities cannot exceed the amount of the rent you collect. But you can still deduct mortgage interest and real estate taxes on the property. Time spent on weekends fixing up the summer home does count as personal use.

-CHARITY DONATIONS - What better time than summer to clean out the attic, basement or garage? Donate your old furniture, appliances and books to a charity thrift shop. You can deduct the fair market value of the things you donate. It's often more beneficial than selling and a lot less trouble. Charitable contribution deductions of property worth more than $5,000 must be accompanied by a formal appraisal. Donations of property worth more than $500 must be accompanied by a special IRS form with information about the charity, the value of the property and its origins. Save the receipts.

-SUMMER ENTERTAINING - Keep

detailed records of all the money you spend for summer business entertaining. As long as the primary purpose of a get-together is business, the cost is fully deductible.

-KID'S SUMMER JOBS - Giving your children summer jobs in your business can yield significant tax benefits.

First, the child's wages are deductible as a business expense, assuming the child really performs a service. Each child can earn as much as $3,560 this year without paying any income tax. If your business is unincorporated and your child is under age 21, the wages are not subject to Social Security tax.

-SUMMER TRAVEL - Your summer vacation could be deductible if you have a tax-favored reason to travel—business, charity, or investments. Transportation expenses for trips within the U.S. are fully deductible if the primary purpose of the trip is business. You can also deduct the cost of meals, hotels, local transportation and tips.

Even if the trip is primarily for pleasure, you can deduct any expenses that are related to your business.

The extra cost of taking your spouse along on the trip isn't deductible unless her (or his) services are essential to the business purpose of the trip. But even if the spouse's expenses are not deducted, that doesn't mean you have to split all the costs for the trip down the middle and deduct only 50 percent. You can deduct what it would have cost you to travel alone.

-401(k) PLAN - Deferred-compensation plans such as 401(k) may be cut back or possibly even eliminated next year if tax reform is enacted. Tax experts say you should contribute as much as you can this year—up to the $30,000 maximum. Contributions are taxed in the year you make withdrawals from the plan.

It might be worthwhile to borrow money if you don't have the cash to fund a 401(k) plan and your Individual Retirement Account (IRA) to $7,000. Further, the interest deduction for amounts borrowed to contribute to these plans may be wiped out as well.

-IRA ACCOUNT - Contributions to your IRA could be made as early in the year as possible to earn the most interest on your account. IRA interest accumulates tax-free until you withdraw the money at retirement. Taxation on money you put away today will be deferred until a time when you are presumable in a much lower tax bracket.

-MUNICIPAL BONDS - The yields on these bonds may very well rise. The market for muni-bonds has been uncertain because their tax-exempt status was threatened by tax reform. However, while the Reagan administration was for the elimination of the tax-exempt status, its retention is supported by both houses of Congress. "We expect that the tax exempt feature will be retained," said Mort Kessel, tax partner with Laventhol & Horwath, national accounting firm. "However, the proposed lower income tax rates may reduce the bonds' appeal to most investors, creating a necessity for the rates to rise."

-YEAR-END PLANNING - Start planning now to have cash available in your budget for year-end expenses. "It's a good idea to have cash on hand to prepay your state and local taxes in December and deduct them on your 1986 return," said Kessel. "If you are planning a major purchase, such as a car, do it in 1986 so that you can deduct the sales tax." Remember, the proposed lower tax rates would make these deductions of lesser value in 1987—they possibly could be eliminated. So take the deductions now.

The Mortgage Report

Nationwide, the average interest rate on 30-year fixed-rate mortgages decreased to 10.51 percent from 10.56 percent the previous week. Adjustable mortgages also declined, now down to 8.68 percent from 8.74 percent last week.

In Chicago, 30-year fixed-rate mortgages dropped slightly to 10.38 percent from last week's 10.40 percent. Adjustable mortgages fell to 8.31 percent, down from 8.38 percent.

Rep. Klemm Reviews Springfield Report

Earlier this year, the joint task force on the liability insurance crisis traveled through the state, holding public hearings to hear testimony from citizens most affected by skyrocketing premiums and unavailability of insurance. When the hearings concluded, the debate went on, with a number of special interest groups bringing their concerns to the Capitol. They sought changes ranging from meaningful tort reforms to insurance industry regulations. When the bill came to the floor for a vote, it fell far short of answering the concerns expressed at the task force hearings. Rep. Klemm believes the final insurance reform bill will do little to ease the crisis in its current form.

Senate Bill 1200, the insurance reform bill, contains such items as:

--A threshold providing that a person who is less than 25 percent at fault for an accident cannot be forced to pay the entire damage award. Although this threshold is a good first step, it probably will not significantly affect the affordability and availability of insurance, particularly since it does not apply in environmental cases or cases of medical malpractice. I would have preferred to see the doctrine of joint and several liability fully abolished.

--Collateral source payments (such as those from insurance) above $25,000 may, under this law, be deducted from damage awards. Unfortunately, this will do little to alleviate the problems since most judgments are below that amount.

--Persons found to be 50 percent or more at fault for their injuries may not, under this law, collect damages. However, since juries must be told that such defendants will not receive an award, they may be more lenient and return "sympathy" verdicts with fault findings under 49 percent.

--This law allows local governments to levy taxes without referendum by issuing bonds to pay the cost of liability lawsuits or to enable them to participate in an insurance pool. Granting taxation power without prior voter approval is dangerous. It could lead to drastic increases in property taxes.

--The law contains no cap on punitive damages, no limit on attorney's fees and does not repeal the Scaffolding Act.

Senate Bill 1200 is now on Gov. Thompson's desk, and he must decide whether to sign it, veto it outright, or use the amendatory veto to make changes.

Insurance reform was not the only item on our agenda this spring. The House of Representatives also sent the governor a $20.5 billion state budget, about $30 million less than he had originally proposed. However, since state revenue is below projections made when the governor unveiled his budget proposal last March, he will probably need to make additional cuts before the budget is finalized.

The following is a detailed list of the many more interesting and important bills passed this spring:

CHILDREN

Child Witnesses (HB 2579) requires the State's Attorneys Appellate Service Commission to conduct training programs for prosecutors and law enforcement officers on ways to reduce trauma for children who are witnesses testifying in criminal proceedings.

School Records (HB 2573) sets up a tracking system to make it easier for law enforcement agencies to learn when vital records for a missing child have been requested. By "logging" such records, it should be easier to discover if a child's abductor is attempting to register that child in a new school.

Videoaped Testimony (HB 2581) provides for the videotaping of testimony given by child victims 12 years of age or younger in sexual abuse or assault cases. If the testimony is taken in court, only the prosecutor, defense attorney and a limited number of other people could be present.

Missing Children (HB 2582) requires police departments and other law enforcement agencies to issue a radio dispatch to all officers on duty whenever a missing child report is received.

Juveniles (SB 1563) permits the court to require a delinquent minor to serve a term of home confinement as a condition of probation or conditional discharge.

Child Abduction (SB 2294) provides for a child abduction charge to be filed against anyone attempting to lure a child under the age of 16 into an auto. In addition, anyone found guilty of detaining or hiding a child for the purpose of denying another person visitation rights would receive a one-year prison term and a $1,000 fine.

Adoption (SB 2077) allows for adoption of an out-of-wedlock child without the consent of the natural father if he has not maintained regular contact with the child or provided financial support to the child.

Habitual Child Sex Offenders (SB 2292) creates the Habitual Child Sex Offender Registration Act. Anyone convicted two or more times of simple or aggravated criminal sexual assault or simple or aggravated criminal sexual abuse is required to register with local law enforcement authorities for a period of 10 years after parole, discharge or release from prison. Failure to register would be punishable by a $1,000 fine and a prison term of up to one year.

Sexual crimes (SB 2293) extends the statute of limitations on the prosecution of previously unknown sexual crimes against children for as long as a year after the crime is discovered by an attorney, until the victim turns 21. The law also makes it a crime to develop film depicting child pornography. A film developer who does not report pornographic pictures of children could receive a one-year prison term and a $1,000 fine.

Homeless Children (HB 3477) expands and clarifies state assistance for homeless youth to include recommendations of the Governor's Task Force on Homeless Youth. The task force estimated that there may be more than 21,000 people under age 21 in Illinois who are homeless.

EDUCATION

University Professors (SB 1516) requires university governing boards to develop English language proficiency standards that their teachers must meet. This is intended to help prevent problems reported by many students who have difficulty understanding foreign-born instructors who do not speak English well.

Excused from P.E. (SB 1705) authorizes, but does not require, school boards to excuse high school juniors and seniors from physical education classes so they may participate in interscholastic sports, enroll in an academic class required for college admission, or enroll in an academic class needed for high school graduation. This measure clarifies provisions of the 1985 education package concerning the school board's authority.

School Bus Seat Belts (SB 1601) prohibits municipalities with a population of one million or more from requiring seat belts in school buses from outside the municipality which are used to bring students to the large municipality for field trips, etc.

School Attendance (HB 988) Changes school attendance requirements to require children ages 7-18, rather than 7-16, to attend school. Also allows a student between the ages of 16 and 18 to enroll in an optional attendance program as an alternative to regular school attendance. These students will be eligible to apply to the regional superintendent of schools for the high school level Tests of General Educational Development (GED).

Student Loans (HB 2552) Authorizes the state comptroller to deduct delinquent student loan payments from income tax refunds.

Small Schools (HB 2828) Gives school districts which have fewer than 200 high school students the option to split into a dual district, so the high school may merge with an adjacent district and the elementary school may remain within the community.

Latchkey Children (HB 3062) Requires the State Board of Education to report annually to the General Assembly and the governor concerning the nature and operation of programs for latchkey children conducted by public schools.

Tuency (HB 3187) amends the school code relative to truancy and its prevention. Adds and revises definitions with respect to truancy, provides for truancy data collection by regional and certain district superintendents, requires school districts to adopt policies relative to supportive services and available resources provided for truants, and provides for regional cooperative initiatives against truancy.

LEGAL

Las Vegas Nights (SB 1552) allows recognized charities to hold "Las Vegas night" gambling event fundraisers under state regulation and supervision. The state and local governments would split one percent of the proceeds. Cash prizes of up to $250 are allowed.

Police Lights (SB 1558) This law makes anyone who unlawfully uses oscillating, rotating or flashing lights to stop another person guilty of a Class 4 felony. The bill was prompted by the murder of a teenage girl who was allegedly pulled over on a country road by three men using a police-like flashing light. The measure also restores requirements that traffic violators must surrender their driver's licenses or some other form of security deposit. Since the enactment of a "sign and go" law in 1984, about 250,000 persons each year have signed, left, and never paid fines or shown up in court.

Feticide (SB 1492) Puts into law five offenses against fetuses considered criminal-intentional homicide; voluntary and involuntary manslaughter; and battery and aggravated battery. The measure is aimed at those who injure pregnant severely enough to cause the miscarriage or death of a fetus. Women consenting to abortions would not be covered by this bill.

Medicaid Fraud (SB 2191-2194) Gives authority to the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid to assign one primary care physician to a welfare recipient who has abused his or her Medicaid privileges. Also, doctors barred from receiving Medicaid payments are prohibited from serving on a board of directors or being an advisor for any entity receiving Medicaid payments. Under SB 2193 and 2194, the use of telephone, wire, radio/television communication or mail fraud as part of a Medicaid fraud scheme would be punishable by one to three years in prison and fines of up to $10,000.

Underage Drinking in Motel/Hotel Rooms (SB 1576, 1577) Holds anyone over 21 liable for knowingly renting a hotel or motel room to be used for minors to drink alcohol. SB 1577 makes this a Class C misdemeanor, punishable by up to 30 days in jail and/or a $500 fine.

Cannabis Derivatives (SB 2017) Provides that cannabis derivatives designated or rescheduled under federal law may be scheduled and controlled under the Illinois Controlled Substances Act rather than the Cannabis Control Act. This would allow these derivatives to be used as "drugs of last resort" in the treatment of cancer patients.

Divorce (HB 2254) Allows spouses considering divorce to waive the required two-year separation period if they have lived apart for 30 days and agree to the waiver in writing. Also permits the Dept. of Public Aid to establish a child support enforcement amnesty program.

"Gray Market" Cars (HB 787) This measure gives the Secretary of State the power to refuse registrations for vehicles that do not meet U.S. safety and anti-pollution standards. The bill is meant to address the so-called "gray market" in which luxury automobiles are purchased in Europe by individuals who then ship them to the U.S. In the U.S., the cars are often resold at prices substantially lower than those charged by legitimate car dealers who must pay to have cars adapted to federal standards.

COUNTIES AND TOWNSHIPS

Jail Funds (SB 1814) Authorizes the Dept. of Corrections to loan money from the County Jail Revolving Loan Fund to any county for the purpose of constructing a new county jail or remodeling, reconstructing or renovating an existing county jail. Restricts financing to 75 percent of the total costs. Counties already upgrading their facilities are eligible for the loans.

Tax Increment Financing (SB 1700) Allows the use of a share of state sales tax proceeds to fund economic development projects. Under the bill, communities could earmark state sales tax collections in a Tax Increment Financing Dist. for repaying bonds used to develop the district. Existing law already allows the use of local property taxes within the district to repay the development bonds.

Cemeteries (HB 3428) Gives townships the authority to provide up to $300 a year for maintaining and cleaning neglected graves and cemeteries.

Rural Aid (SB 2255) Includes an extension of the state's current farm-debt restructuring program, as well as a plan for state help for building regional corrections facilities to relieve overcrowding in county jails.

Criminal Contribution (HB 2648) Provides that the court may, as a condition of probation or conditional discharge, require that an offender reimburse any "local anti-crime program" for any reasonable expenses incurred on the offender's case, and that an offender contribute a reasonable sum of money to such a program.

Drunk Driving Fee (HB 2738) Raises from $5 to $30 the added fee that counties must impose on persons convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol or other drugs.

Natural Snow Fences (HB 2562) Requires counties and townships to pay either the local market price or the Commodity Credit Corporation loan price, whichever is higher, to farmers who agree to grow row crops for natural snowbreaks. An additional ten percent inconvenience fee can also be paid. This should increase participation in the "row crop for snowbreak" program, which uses natural crops, instead of fences, to keep roads clear of snow.

PUBLIC HEALTH AND SAFETY

Organ Transplants (SB 233) Requires the Secretary of State to inform driver's license applicants or licensees about the organ donor form on the back of the license, describe the procedures for filling it out and offer to provide the necessary witnesses. Homeowner And Renter Policy Important Individuals engaged in the sale and service of life insurance have long identified themselves and have been recognized by the public by many different professional titles—with "agent" probably being the most popular.

Increasingly, however, the term "life underwriter" is used by and applied to such professionals. And for good reason: they are engaged in underwriting the financial lives of those they serve.

As part of this endeavor, more and more "Life underwriters" are engaged in the sale and service of property/casualty coverages. And, since a homeowners/renters policy is economically essential and so often purchased, the (Anytown) Association of Life Underwriters shares the following practical advice compiled by a companion organization—the Professional Insurance Agents Association:

If you are a typical American consumer, one of the biggest investments you probably will make in your lifetime is the purchase of a home. As a homeowner, you can purchase a comprehensive package of insurance known as "the homeowners policy" which protects your investment from unforeseen perils like fire, theft and legal suits.

But if your home or apartment were destroyed by fire today, would you know how much your insurance company would be obligated to pay you? Or if your mailman slipped on your front steps and fractured a leg, are you protected against a lawsuit?

These questions and others can be answered with a review of your policy—its coverages, amounts and limitations.

The first coverage in your homeowners policy insures your house—or "dwelling" as it is referred to in your policy—against specified perils such as fire, wind damage, lightning, etc. In addition to your living quarters, it also covers any attached structures such as garage or porch.

Other structures, called "appurtenant" structures on your property can include a detached garage, guest house or permanent tool shed. Any building on your property used for commercial purposes or any other dwelling you own which is rented or leased is not automatically covered under your homeowners policy and should be discussed with your agent to make sure you are fully covered.

If you rent, you obviously do not need insurance coverage on your apartment building or other appurtenant structures, but you should have the remaining coverages in a standard homeowners policy, which are explained below.

The contents of your house or apartment and your personal belongings are covered against loss or damage under the personal property section of your homeowner's policy. This coverage also applies if a loss of property occurs away from home with certain limitations. For example, if you're on vacation and your hotel room is burglarized and your possessions are taken.

To assure a quick and fair settlement, in the event of a loss of personal property, make an inventory list of your household contents, with date of purchase, and price paid of each item. It's also a good idea to take photographs of your belongings and store them and the list in a fireproof box or in a safe place away from your home. If your property were destroyed and you were required to file a complete inventory list from memory, could you recall every item you own?

If your home or apartment is damaged to the extent that you have to live in a hotel or motel, the additional living expenses section of your policy will provide reimbursement for necessary living expenses up to a specified limit that you wouldn't routinely incur. This also includes the cost of eating in restaurants if, for example, your kitchen was damaged by fire.

The personal liability coverage of your policy protects you against lawsuits for bodily injury and property damage for which you could be held legally liable. The mailman who slips on your front steps could collect under this section, if you were found liable. In the event of a lawsuit, the insurance company would pay all legal costs of defending you and any damages awarded up to your policy's limit. This coverage also provides protection away from home. If you're on the golf course and accidentally slice a drive into someone's head, your personal liability coverage would protect you.

If a visitor sustains a minor accidental injury for which you are responsible, you may feel a moral obligation to pay his medical expenses. Such expenses are covered under the medical payments section of your homeowners policy. Payment is made without concern for legal liability and is usually limited to $500 per person, but the limit can sometimes be increased.

The last of the coverages, property damage, covers minor damage that you or a member of your family might accidentally cause to another's person's property. A good example would be if your youngster's baseball were to break the neighbor's window. The insurance company will pay, regardless of fault, up to the specified limits, usually $250 per accident.

All coverages have maximum dollar figures that your insurance company will pay per loss.

The value of your house must be determined before you can select the amount of coverage to place on it. Although it is advised that the amount of coverage on your dwelling equal its full replacement value, you can select an amount less than 100 percent. However, many companies will not insure your home for less than 80 percent of replacement value.

The amount of coverage you select on your dwelling determines the coverage amounts automatically assigned to your other structures, personal property and additional living expenses. The limits of coverages are usually established as follows: other structures equals 10 percent of dwelling coverage; personal property equals 50 percent of the dwelling coverage; and additional living expenses equals 20 percent of the dwelling coverage.

You can select the amount of personal liability coverage you feel will adequately protect you. A minimum of $100,000 is advised.

Certain valuable personal belongings, such as antiques, money, stamps, jewelry, silver and furs, usually have separate limitations stated in your policy. If their value exceeds the limit, you can have a floater endorsement attached to your policy to cover items at their full replacement value. The added cost for a floater is minimal in most cases. Valuable items should be appraised every three years to assure they are covered at their true value.

The same principle should be applied to the amount of coverage carried on your house. If the dwelling is seven years old, there's a good chance you may be underinsured because of rising real estate values and inflation. Every year your house is worth more and it would take more dollars to replace it if it were destroyed. In many states, an inflation guard endorsement is available to periodically increase the dwelling and other property coverages to offset inflation.

To keep the cost of your homeowners insurance down, you may want to include a deductible clause in your policy. By agreeing to pay for the small losses (usually $100 or less), you can save up to 20 percent of your premium. Many companies now offer a $250 or higher deductible, providing even greater savings on the cost of the policy. Before you decide on the amount of deductible, check the difference in the premium between the $100 and the higher deductible. The difference may not justify taking on the higher risk of the higher deductible.

The homeowners policy is one of the least expensive types of insurance offered to the American consumer, yet it provides a high degree of protection from a wide range of perils that could potentially cause financial ruin.

Why Should A Family Get Life Insurance?

In recent years, many reasons for owning life insurance have been added to the traditional list, but the basic purpose of "financial protection" still tops them all.

A survey made by the American Council of Life Insurance on life insurance ownership asked those interviewed what they regarded as the chief reason for owning such protection. The "financial protection" reason was given by 75 percent.

Next in importance was the use of life insurance to pay burial expenses. And following in rank of importance were "money for emergencies," retirement, and "savings."

Of course, even the broad category of "financial protection" actually breaks itself into a number of more closely defined reasons, such as readjustment income (to carry over a period of family readjustments to the new program, income until the children are through school and lifetime income).

Then, for the millions of businesspeople, whether owners, partners or stockholders, there is the matter of providing for both the payment of the value of the business to the family and provision for the continuity of the business. Life insurance has come to be widely used for these purposes, many billions of it now assuring immediate payment to families of the owner's equity and providing the firm with means of tiding over its readjustment in ownership, without sale of property or ownership interest.

Closely lined with this, is a large block of business insurance called "key person insurance," which pays to the business the full policy proceeds in the event of the death of a key participant in the business. This prevents the firm from incurring what might be a catastrophic loss in the event of the death of someone around whom much of the firm's business turns.

While "educational insurance" is usually thought of as the large block of protection set up to assure funds to carry children through college in case the breadwinner does not live to accomplish that, permanent life insurance can be used to meet educational needs in other ways: collateral for a student loan and borrowed cash values. Even some "family income" policies become educational plans indirectly, by giving the family a base income which permits the youngster to continue with his studies financed by other sources.

Mortgage protection has become an increasingly important reason for life insurance purchase in recent years, as home ownership has widened and the long-term amortizing mortgage has increased in popularity. Many families now own policies for the specific purpose of paying off the mortgage in the event of the death of the home owner. This prevents what might become an excessive burden to the family endeavoring to maintain the mortgage payments.

Retirement planning is another reason that has widened in recent years. Many families now have policies which give protection during the years prior to retirement and then a monthly income for life thereafter.

Also, many families are using the cash values in family protection policies after the need for this protection has passed, to provide retirement income, having had this secondary use in mind when they purchased the insurance.

With the growth in family income and family wealth, there has been an increased use of life insurance to insure against the shrinkage of the family wealth following the death of a family breadwinner. This is sometimes geared specifically to estate and inheritance tax payment and is sometimes broader, providing for all expenses involved in handling an estate.

Bequest insurance has also grown in the past generation or two and many people own policies to provide payment of funds to some charitable, welfare or educational institution. In some localities, campaigns have been put on for such insurance to finance a large part of some community development, such as a new hospital.

Shop Around For Annuities

Annuities are distinctive insurance products that provide income for a specified number of years or for life. They are frequently used to provide retirement income. You can buy an annuity during your working years on an installment basis with regular annual payments. You can also buy an annuity with a single lump-sum premium with annuity payments to begin at the time of purchase, or at some future time, such as at retirement. The latter type is called a "single premium deferred annuity." An annuity sponsored by your employer may also be a good investment, especially if your employer matches a portion of the money you invest.

With any annuity, whether it is purchased in a lump sum premium or in installments, income accumulates tax-free until it is withdrawn. With any annuity, too, you may choose among several payout options: a straight life annuity pays an income to you (the annuitant) for life, with no subsequent payments due to anyone. A straight life annuity can have the largest payout. A life annuity with installments certain also pays an income to you for life but with a specified minimum number of years so that, if you die within that period, the balance of the payments is paid to your beneficiary. The refund annuity guarantees payment for life or, at least, until payouts equal the premiums paid under the contract. If you die before that time, any refund will be made to your beneficiary. And a joint and survivor annuity provides payments for as long as both you and your designated survivor live.

As you shop for an annuity, these are the factors to consider:

- The current interest rate on your contributions and how often it may change;
- The minimum interest rate guaranteed in the contract; administrative charges and annual management fees;
- Penalties for early withdrawal of your funds.

How To Choose The Right Life Insurance

The primary purpose of life insurance is to provide financial security for your dependents. If you are a working wife with young children, life insurance could pay for child care and maintain your family's standard of living in the event of your death. If you are a homemaker, life insurance could pay for all the domestic services that you now provide for your family, services that would cost about $9,000 to $10,000 a year...or $144,000 to $160,000 without any increase in salary, for the 16 years in which children may need live-in care. If you are a wife in a childless couple, life insurance can help your husband pay some debts he might otherwise be hard-pressed to pay. If you've been pooling your salaries to buy a condominium, for example, life insurance on each of you could help the survivor keep the property. If you are single, life insurance can help your parents, if they survive you and rely on you for support, or provide a retirement fund for yourself. Life insurance comes in several forms:

Whole Life Insurance offers life-long protection at a fixed premium that is based on your age at the time of purchase. It includes cash value, growing over the life of the policy, which you can borrow against while keeping the policy in force or take out if you cancel the policy. If you no longer need life insurance protection when you reach retirement age, for example, you can use the cash value, if it is of sufficient size, to buy an annuity which will provide monthly payments for as long as you live. Or, if you want to keep some life insurance at that point without paying any more premiums, you can use the cash value to obtain term insurance for the same face value for a certain period of time. Or, if you like, you can convert your policy into a paid-up policy in a smaller amount, owe no more premiums and still have the cash value available to you. Whole life insurance is a very versatile element in your financial planning, but don't buy it unless you plan to keep it in force; it can be very expensive if you allow it to lapse in the first several years.

Term Life Insurance provides pure life insurance protection (there is no cash value) for a specified period of time. A policy may be obtained for one, five, or ten years or longer. If the policy is "renewable," you may then extend it for another term; if it is "convertible," you may convert it to whole life insurance without a medical examination. Premiums on term insurance are also based on age. They do not remain fixed, however, but go up, along with your age, each time the policy is renewed. While term insurance can become relatively expensive for older people, it offers younger people the most life insurance protection at the lowest dollar outlay. Decreasing term insurance keeps the premium the same each year for the specified period, even as you age, while the face amount of the policy declines. It is often purchased to cover a specific financial need which decreases over time, such as paying off a mortgage in the event of a wage-earner's death, or insuring a homemaker's life during the time diminishing period when children are dependent.

In recent years, new types of policies have been added which provide insurance protection as well as offer yields that reflect current interest rates.

Universal Life Insurance is designed to permit a policyholder to pay premiums at any time, in virtually any amount, subject to certain minimums. The policyholder can also change the amount of insurance (death benefit) more easily than under traditional policies. The amount the cash value increases each year reflects the interest earned on the company's short-term investments. Because it is so flexible, universal life insurance can be used to meet your changing lifelong needs.

Variable Life Insurance allows cash values to fluctuate according to the yields earned by a separate fund which can be either an equity, money market or long-term bond fund. There is a minimum guaranteed death benefit, but it can go higher, depending on the earnings of the dollars invested in the separate fund.

Adjustable Life Insurance permits you to change the policy as your needs change, by increasing or decreasing your premium payments, by lengthening or shortening the period of coverage, or by shifting the type of coverage.

HomeOwners Insurance Protects The Family

Life insurance is being used by millions of home owners today to back up their home financing and guarantee repayment of home loans in the event of death.

The exact number of such home loan guaranty policies is not available, as they are written under a number of plans and are not specifically tallied as such. They are made a definite part of the planning and programming of life insurance agents, however, and are used in a large part of those cases where policyholders have mortgages or home loans outstanding.

A great many of these loans are automatically covered by life insurance when taken out. This is true of many loans today. In such cases, the banks insure all borrowers for the outstanding balance of the loan at time of death, whatever that may be.

Many people assign specific policies to cover either the mortgage balance or, in the case of improvement loans, the loan balance outstanding at time of death. Some of the policies written for this purpose are reducing term policies which decrease in size as the loan is reduced, terminating when the loan is paid off. Others are regular, lifetime policies which are designated for this particular purpose for the duration of the loan and then used for other family protection needs later.

The purpose of the mortgage or loan life insurance is to enable the property owner to attain his full home ownership objective in spite of death. That is, the property will be left to his family unencumbered. Often a family can take on a home project, either the ownership itself or some improvement as long as the income producer's resources are available to maintain the carrying charges. But those carrying charges may be far too much of a burden for his family, after his death. By leaving the home, free and clear, for his family, the policyholder has made a basic contribution to sound family financial planning.

Resolve Conflict

The high rate of acceptability indicates how successful life insurance companies have been over the years in solving the problem of two conflicting underwriting objectives. On the one hand, companies want to provide the benefit of life insurance protection to the greatest possible number of people. On the other hand, in fairness to all policyholders, who share the insurance risks, companies must take into account individual differences among applicants.

Insurance Meeting

The first conference of state insurance commissioners was held in 1871 in New York City. Today, the commissioners of all 50 states and the District of Columbia are members of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners and meet regularly on matters of common concern.

Life Insurance Can Offer Many Tax Benefits

One of the distinctive and valuable aspects of life insurance is that death benefits are usually received income tax-free by beneficiaries. This is true for term or permanent, individually-owned or employer provided life insurance.

However, there are other, perhaps lesser-known tax rules applicable to life insurance that might well be considered in deciding how much and what kind of life insurance to acquire.

For example, tax laws allow employers to pay for up to $50,000 worth of income tax free life insurance for their employees. Employer-purchased life insurance in excess of $50,000 constitutes taxable income to employees.

So, what happens if a person wants more coverage than the employer provides, or wants to own it him or herself to protect against losing coverage if he or she changes jobs?

Such a person can buy permanent or term life insurance.

Generally, term insurance is priced according to its amount and the prospect's age and health. Its premium, paid with after-tax dollars, usually rises each year as the policyholder ages, and is often available in postretirement years.

The cost of permanent insurance also reflects amount, age and health, and also the fact that pay-off is guaranteed, either in surrender, retirement or death benefits.

Permanent insurance is also bought with after-tax dollars, but its premium structure is based on its "whole life" value. Premiums together with income earned by investing those premiums accumulate over the life of the policy to ultimately equal the death benefit (or retirement or surrender value).

This accumulation, called "cash values" or the "inside buildup," grows income tax free. Cash values are taxed only if and when the policy is surrendered, and then only to the extent they exceed the amount the policyholder paid for the insurance contract.

Another tax-related aspect of life insurance is that as a general rule, estate and inheritance taxes will be due on the value of life insurance owned by a decedent. Thus, a policy holder may wish, for estate planning purposes, to consider owning extra life insurance to compensate his or her heirs for the extra tax liability, or to arrange for alternative ownership (e.g., have the spouse own the policy).

Career life underwriters are well-versed in the tax law governing life insurance. They can guide policyholders to an appropriate decision on the right kind and amount of life insurance to cover their specific needs and circumstances.

Extra Risk Policies Are Available

Several developments have contributed to the high rate of applicants' acceptability. "Extra-risk" policies, with higher premiums to compensate for poor health or hazardous occupations, have made life insurance available to many who could not otherwise obtain it. And advances in medicine, job safety and public health have led to more liberal underwriting of policies, enabling many persons to buy insurance at standard rates who would formerly have had to pay a higher premium because of their health or occupation.

Changes in underwriting policy are supported by considerable research into the effects of various health and occupational hazards on life expectancy and mortality. One such study involving millions of policyholders, dealt with the interrelationship of body build, weight, blood pressure and longevity, and led to the establishment of new national health standards.

Politicians Prowling, Time To Grab Wallets

by JOHN STEINKE

Soon the leaves will be falling, and the politicians will be stirring. Why? It is because of the fact that we're going to have an election on Tuesday, Nov. 4.

This is the season that we should place our hands on our wallets and our ballots. Oh, the politicians will tell us how much they love us and how well they have served us. But we all know that most of them perceive us as only computerized votes. Most politicians don't consider us as living-breathing human beings. We are only punch cards on the bottom of ballot boxes. How many politicians personally contact you, and ask you how life is treating you in non-election years?

Already the politicians are marching in parades, pressing the flesh, kissing babies, patting bottoms and whispering sweet nothings in our ears. But we should never forget that ambitious politicians are driven by an insatiable desire for power or gold. To help maintain a proper perspective on politics, I am going to share some political wisdom with you that I have collected over the years:

1. "Harry, if anything happens to me I don't want you to call the priest or the undertaker. Just get your butt down to the bank and get them deposit boxes." Chicago Alderman Mathias (Paddy) Bauler.

2. "Take care of the voters first, then you can take care of yourself." Paddy Bauler.

3. "There comes a time when every man must rise above principle." Indiana Senator James Watson.

Steinke On Politics

4. "Friendship in politics undermines more principles than fraud and gratitude is a worse poison than graft." Samuel Hopkins Adams.

5. "There's only one thing worse than a defeated politician and that's a broke one." Ill. Secretary of State Paul Powell.

6. "Is there politics after death? There better be!" Lake County Sheriff Robert H. "Mickey" Babcox.

7. With (Mayor Richard J) Daley, it is God, country and the 11th Ward, but not necessarily in that order." Chicago Democratic politician.

8. "Every politician has a vested interest: himself." Roger Ruthhart.

9. "Sixty percent of politicians give you misleading information; 40 percent of politicians tell the truth." Roger Ruthhart.

10. "Practical politics consists of ignoring the facts." Henry Adams.

11. "An honest politician is one, when he is bought, will stay bought." Simon Cameron, the Republican boss of Pennsylvania (1860).

When the politicians come-a-courting you for your vote with their plastic smiles, sweaty handshakes, inflated promises and the pretense of concern for you as a human being! DON'T BELIEVE THEM.

Anderson Takes Junior Spring Valley Tee-Off

Bill Anderson, a Central High School graduate, captured the Spring Valley Junior Championship by shooting a 5 over par 75 on the 4th hole.

Anderson had one birdie on number 14, 11 pars and bogeys enroute to his first place finish. Anderson won the graduate division by 9 shots over his teammate from this past season, Cannon Holt.

Holt trailed by only 2 shots at the turn, but Anderson fired a 37 while Holt finished with 44. Steve Shwaiko of Bradford was third with an 86.

Rick Korjenek of Antioch won the senior division with a score of 77. Korjenek birdied 2 and 9 while shooting 37 on the front and then coasted to an easy win with a 40 on the back nine. His closest competition came from Mike Krause of Racine who shot an 84.

Greg Smith of Wilmot went 39-39-78 to score a one shot victory over Scott Frisch of Antioch. Tim Gebhardt of Burlington St. Marys was a close third with 81. Smith had a steady round with 10 pars and one birdie.

David Mantey of South Milwaukee captured the Sophomore division with nines of 41-37 for a 78. Pete Korzilius of St. Catherines was a close second with an 80.

Peter Beckwith of Fontana edged Chad Nicpon of Wilmot, 83-85, to win the freshman division. Nicpon led by 3 shots after the front nine, but Beckwith came in with a 39 on the back while Nicpon faltered to a 44 to finish second.

Jason Holt of Salem, Mike Epping of Lance and John

Bundy of Washington had one of the closest battles of the day in the eight grade division.

Holt led Bundy by one and Epping by 2 after shooting a 54 on the front nine. Bundy fell out of contention on 12 and 15 while Holt and Epping continued to fight it out for the championship.

They were even after 15. Holt took a one shot lead after 16 and when Holt had a par 3 on 17 and Epping made a 7 the result was clear, but Epping came back and birdied 18 and forced Holt to make a par to preserve his 4-shot margin.

Marcy Sipla of Racine Case shot 86 to win the girls division over second place Carrie Strach of Elkhorn and Ginna Perrelle of Racine was third with a 96.

Attends Leaders' Program

Cadet Paul J. Hettich, son of Paul and Mary Hettich of Antioch, received practical work in military leadership at the U.S. Army ROTC advanced camp, Fort Riley, Kansas.

The six-week camp, attended by cadets between their third and fourth year of college, includes instruction in communications, management, and survival training.

Successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from college results in a commission as a second lieutenant in either the U.S. Army, Army Reserve, or National Guard for the cadet.

Hettich is a student at Barat College in Lake Forest and is attending ROTC at Loyola University in Chicago.

Plans are now in full swing at St. Peter's parish of Antioch for the fifth annual presentation of "Footlights" to be held the weekends of Oct. 31, Nov. 1, 7, and 8.

The theme this year is "Footlights and Fancy Free." The entire school will be transformed into an entertainment extravaganza. Admission is restricted to those over 21.

Footlights is one of the major annual social events at St. Peter's. In addition to the efforts and talent of local people who participate directly in the show, area business people are given the opportunity to underwrite production costs as sponsors.

Sponsors' names will be printed in the program book and signs with their names will be placed in the room sponsored.

Though November seems far away, sponsorships need to be arranged now so that managers know what their budget is. For further information, call Gail Marquenski at (312) 356-3725 or Jim Haley at (312) 395-5292.

'Readers On The Move' Earn Special Honors

The summer reading program, "Readers On The Move," sponsored by the Young People's Room of Wauconda Twp. Library ended with a celebration on July 25. Over 100 people, mostly youngsters, applauded a performance by Birdie the Clown and her magical parrot, George, on the back lawn of the library. Though the celebration was to honor especially those children who had read at least 15 books during the six-week program, everyone was invited to join the fun.

One hundred and thirty children received certificates of participation. Those who read 15 or more books also received an award which this year was a pair of blue and white sneaker shoe strings with "Readers On The Move" printed on them.

Well over 2,600 books were read by Wauconda youngsters in conjunction with this program. If these books were piled up, they would equal a stack approximately 175 feet high! The object of the reading program was to encourage recreational reading for fun and to keep those reading skills sharpened for the return to school in the fall.

One youngster will receive special recognition for her outstanding achievement of reading 110 books. Rebekah Kay Vincent will have an acknowledgment of her 1986 summer reading recorded in a new library book of her choice to remain in the Young People's Room as a permanent inspiration to other young readers.

Zion Hosts Hong Kong

A delegation of visitors from Hong Kong, seeking information about nuclear energy, inspected the facilities at Commonwealth Edison's Zion nuclear facility. From left, George Pliml, plant manager; Allen Lee, Hong Kong visitor; Dr. Daniel Tse; Zion Mayor Howard Everline and Stephen Cheong, head of the Hong Kong delegation. The delegation will take the results of their fact-finding mission to the Hong Kong government.

Hong Kong Group Visits Zion Nuclear Plant

by STEVE PETERSON

Discovering the best and safest ways to construct a nuclear power plant brought three Hong Kong visitors to Zion.

The legislative councilors—Allen Lee, Stephen Cheong and Dr. Daniel Tse, toured the Commonwealth Edison's Nuclear facility at Zion. The three viewed the plant's training facilities and learned about the emergency procedures at Zion.

"I was very impressed with the whole set-up and the community involvement in all the emergency planning," Tse said.

The delegation's mission came to Zion, whose emergency planning zone covers Gurnee, because the Chinese government is planning to build a nuclear plant 50 kilometers from Hong Kong. Zion was chosen by the United States State Department as a stop on the group's tour.

"They are very concerned," Tse said the reaction in Hong Kong to the nuclear plant.

He said the group plans to make a presentation after its fact-finding mission to the full Hong Kong government.

Tse pointed out that the Zion situation, with 3.5 million people living within a close distance to the plant, is similar to Hong Kong's, with 5.5 million.

Tse said the people who run Zion "are very careful about what they do. They don't leave anything to chance."

Mark Boyd, press officer accompanying the group, said the Hong Kong government is comprised of a senior executive council, elected officials and unofficial officials. Elected officials and unofficial officials can be appointed or elected.

The delegation also toured the Baltimore Gas and Electric's Calvert Cliffs Nuclear Plant.

Meetings with the U.S. Energy Dept., the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and representatives from the Atomic Industrial Forum and the Natural Resource Defense Council have been included in the tour.

THIS WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

BY SALOME

Aries (Mar. 21-Apr. 19) Stop wool-gathering and start making real plans to deal with real challenges that will begin to emanate from Gemini and Libra quarters.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20) Take that planned time off later. Right now, charge into the newly-arrived opportunity that appears to have your name written all over it. Good luck.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Handle the new competition so that it works in your favor. Rather than let it bruise your ego, use it as a spur to increase productivity.

Cancer (June 21-July 20) Competing forces can seem overwhelming if you allow yourself to be pushed to the edge. Clear a way for yourself to emerge with your own ideas.

Leo (Jul. 21-Aug. 22) The temptation to roar back at an unfair competitor betrays your own weakened position. Strengthen your weak spots and then make that bold move.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's a time to weigh words carefully. What you say may well reflect your views, but are you sure the reflection isn't slightly distorted?

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Cool the tendency to be overly demonstrative. Sometimes it's best to be temporarily withdrawn in attitude than being overdrawn emotionally.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) The current situation is confusing. But don't try to please everyone. Follow your own good sense of what's right.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Watch the tendency to overindulge in various activities. It's better to do a little less than you expected than overdo and regret it.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A misunderstanding needs to be smoothed over before it turns up into something more serious. Don't ignore the problem. Act on it now.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) An apparent act of mixed signals is easily straightened out. Act quickly to reassure others of your intentions. Cooperation must be given.

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar. 20) A feeling of being left adrift passes once you assess your position. As soon as you know what your goals are, head for them immediately.
